April 30, 2010

Although our organization is free from political, religious and other sectarian control or interference but we did absolutely not accept the United Front of Democracy Against Dictatorship (UDD) or Red Shirt protesters who stormed the King Chulalongkorn Memorial Hospital at last night, April 29, 2010. Some protestors and guards searched the hospital located on Ratchadamri Road, Bangkok, Kingdom of Thailand for military and security forces believed to be hiding out.

We seriously condemn the UDD protesters who stormed the hospital because they broke Geneva Conventions and international law for humanitarian treatment. The Geneva Conventions comprise rules that apply in times of armed conflict and seek to protect people who are not or are no longer taking part in hostilities, for example: wounded or sick fighters, prisoners of war, civilians, medical and religious personnel.
